

ISSUE 08

JULY 2035

- 01 Influencing the New Trends
- 02 Passion for Fashion
- 03 Putting a Stop to Fast Fashion
- 04 5 Ways to Update Your Wardrobe
- 05 You Are What You Wear

SUMMER TUNE

THE FUTURE OF FASHION IS HERE

THE FUTURE OF FASHION IS CIRCULAR,
EXPRESSIVE, AND DESIGNED FOR A LONGER LIFE.

SUMMER JUNE

WWW.REALLYGREATSITE.COM
HELLO@REALLYGREATSITE.COM
@REALLYGREATSITE

Editor-in-Chief

Carly Ferris

Managing Editor

Wendy Salinas

Content Director

Theodore Lewitz

Art Director

Jackson Davis

Photographers

Francois Mercer, Jin Ae Soo

Contributing Writers

Maria Aguado, Margarita Perez

CONTRIBUTORS

Phyllis Schwaiger

A fashion editor covering circular design and independent makers.

Aaron Loeb

A stylist known for expressive layers and practical wardrobe ideas.

Noah Schumacher

A photographer documenting culture, movement, and personal style.

Jackson Davis

A sustainability writer tracing clothing from material to long-term use.

WHAT'S INSIDE

06	The Future of Fashion Is Here
09	Influencing the New Trends
11	Putting a Stop to Fast Fashion
14	5 Ways to Update Your Wardrobe
16	You Are What You Wear
18	Passion for Fashion

Letters from readers show how much they feel a connection with your publication. Whether they're glowing reviews, helpful feedback, or simple shoutouts, these readers taking the time to write shows how much they care.

Show your appreciation by featuring their letters in your next issue. They're sure to feel valued once they read it.

- Caden SB, Santa Solana

Reply to their letters sincerely, showing how much you value their opinion and are honored to receive it.

love, Carly

Letters from readers show how much they feel a connection with your publication. Whether they're glowing reviews, helpful feedback, or simple shoutouts, these readers taking the time to write shows how much they care.

Show your appreciation by featuring their letters in your next issue. They're sure to feel valued once they read it.

- Bridget C, Venston Bay

Reply to their letters sincerely, showing how much you value their opinion and are honored to receive it.

love, Carly

READER
LETTERS

HEY, DEAR READERS

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

Carly Ferris

Editor-in-Chief

THE FUTURE OF FASHION IS HERE

BY MARGARITA PEREZ.
PHOTOGRAPHY BY FRANCOIS MERCER

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits.
Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge.
Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

A wardrobe can feel new without constant replacement.
Restyling layers, adjusting fit, adding colour, repairing favourites, and swapping with others can create meaningful change.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

A wardrobe can feel new without constant replacement. Restyling layers, adjusting fit, adding colour, repairing favourites, and swapping with others can create meaningful change.

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

“The most modern wardrobe is one you can keep evolving.”

BY SHARLENE ROSE
PHOTOGRAPHY BY JACKSON DAVIS

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge.
Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

INFLUENCING THE

NEW TRENDS

“The most modern wardrobe is one you can keep evolving.”

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Here, you can place a caption for the photo. It can be a short description or it can credit the production team.

PUTTING A STOP TO FAST FASHION

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

A wardrobe can feel new without constant replacement. Restyling layers, adjusting fit, adding colour, repairing favourites, and swapping with others can create meaningful change.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

BY WENDY SALINAS
PHOTOGRAPHY BY AARON LOEB

ADVERTISEMENT

“The most modern wardrobe is one you can keep evolving.”

A wardrobe can feel new without constant replacement. Restyling layers, adjusting fit, adding colour, repairing favourites, and swapping with others can create meaningful change.

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

5 WAYS TO UPDATE YOUR WARDROBE

Wear articles differently

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

Mix and match different pieces

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Identify gaps in your wardrobe

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

BY PHYLLIS SCHWAIGER
PHOTOGRAPHY BY JIN AE SOO

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Invest in staples

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

Have them altered

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

A wardrobe can feel new without constant replacement. Restyling layers, adjusting fit, adding colour, repairing favourites, and swapping with others can create meaningful change.

YOU ARE WHAT YOU WEAR

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

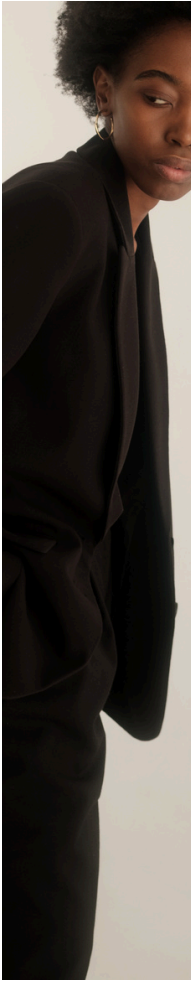

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

Fashion changes fastest when new ideas meet real habits. Influencers, designers, and customers all shape which silhouettes, values, and ways of wearing gain momentum.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

BY WENDY SALINAS
PHOTOGRAPHY BY AARON LOEB

P*A*SSION

FOR F*A*SHION

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

Putting a stop to fast fashion requires better systems as well as better choices. Durability, repair, resale, responsible production, and transparent labour all have a role.

Passion for fashion can grow through knowledge. Understanding fabric, construction, and care makes it easier to recognise pieces that deserve long-term use.

A wardrobe can feel new without constant replacement. Restyling layers, adjusting fit, adding colour, repairing favourites, and swapping with others can create meaningful change.

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

“The most modern wardrobe is one you can keep evolving.”

What we wear carries memory and identity. Clothing can express confidence, connection, practicality, and the version of ourselves we are becoming.

Circular design treats the end of one use as the beginning of another. Modular construction, recyclable materials, and take-back systems are expanding what is possible.

This issue meets makers and wearers who see style as an evolving practice built on curiosity rather than constant consumption.

The future of fashion will be judged not only by how it looks, but by how thoughtfully it is made, worn, and renewed.

SUBSCRIBE TO SUMMER JUNE

WWW.REALLYGREATSITE.COM

NEVER MISS AN ISSUE!

Enjoy huge savings
Free home delivery
Get your copy before everyone else

CHECK OUT OUR ONLINE EDITION

Catch the freshest features
Updated daily
Read anytime, anywhere

ADVERTISEMENT

